Verbal Description:

Part of the head of a single chamber ocarina which probably only depicted the head. The head traces the coronal suture, arching in a band across the top of the head. There are vertical incisions radiating outward from the margin which rests on the head. There is a groove dividing the striated section from the base of the head. The beak curves away (convexly) from the head into what would have been a rectangular mouth piece. Orange deposit on rounded area, pit in groove - looks like pigment stone material.
